The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method<sup>2</sup> and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Euro 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 0.00%, he has to spend a one-off amount of Euro 0.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

As in previous months, the European stock markets largely made good progress in March. Initial fears of recession have turned into hope that a soft landing is still possible in the major economic regions. In the eurozone, the Purchasing Managers' Index for services reached 51.1 points in March, rising once again after February (50.2). This index is regarded as the most reliable economic barometer for the eurozone and suggests a modest economic recovery (values above 50 signal expansion). However, the index counterpart for the manufacturing industry fell to 45.7 points (previous month: 46.5), which indicates that the eurozone economy is still struggling with the effects of the key interest rate hikes and the rise in electricity and energy prices. In turn, the European Central Bank signalled in March that it might cut interest rates for the first time in June. Inflation in the eurozone fell to 2.6% year-on-year in February (January: 2.8%). The DJE - Europe rose by 3.36% in this market environment. Particularly pleasing results came from the retail, basic materials and energy sectors. The retail sector benefited from a significant improvement in the ifo business climate index, as both the assessment of the current situation and expectations brightened. In turn, basic materials benefited from the fact that the majority of market participants no longer expect a recession. The energy sector benefited from rising energy prices, which were attributable to geopolitical risks and uncertainties, including in the Middle East. On the other hand, the media, industrials and consumer goods & services sectors performed disappointingly or sideways, as there was little new impetus here despite the renewed economic resilience and rising energy prices weighed on industry. The fund management adjusted the sector allocation over the course of the month and increased the weighting of the healthcare and chemicals sectors in particular. In turn, it reduced the media, consumer goods & services and technology sectors, among others. At country level, the proportion of German stocks increased, while the proportion of Swiss and Dutch stocks fell slightly. As a result of the adjustments, the investment ratio fell slightly from 98.92% to 98.20%. Liquidity rose to 1.80%.
