The Funds are actively managed by DJE and, where a benchmark index is indicated, without reference to it. The presented charts and tables concerning performance are based on our own calculations according to the gross performance (BVI) method<sup>2</sup> and illustrate past development. Past performance is not indicative for future returns. The BVI method takes into account all costs incurred at the fund level (e.g. management fees), the net performance and the issue fee. Additional individual costs may be incurred at the customer level (e.g. custodian fees, commission and other charges). Model calculation (net): an investor wishes to purchase shares for Euro 1,000. With a maximum issue surcharge of 0.00%, he has to spend a one-off amount of Euro 0.00 when making the purchase. In addition, there may be custodian costs that reduce performance. The custodian costs are decided by your bank's price list and service charges

Investment Approach

DJE - Asien invests primarily in companies with attractive and promising business models from the Asia-Pacific region. The RCEP free trade zone (Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership), which was established in 2020, is the largest in the world in terms of its share of global GDP and is expected to contribute to the region's dynamic growth (see chart). The fund allocation is based on our proprietary fundamental top-down (FMM methodology) and bottom-up analysis. We believe that the combination of global macroeconomic analysis along with bottom-up security selection is essential to balance opportunities and risks. The focus of the fund is companies with attractive revenue and earnings growth, stable earnings, potential for innovation and a leading competitive position. The fund management allocates across regions, countries, and sectors of the Asian economic area, independent from any market benchmarks.

Opportunities

- + Excellent demographic developments make long-term growth in investments in Asia possible
- + The conditions for expansion in many Asian domestic economies, such as China, continue to exist
- + Traditionally higher dividend payments mean that the fund can take advantage of the compounding effect of reinvested dividends

Risks

- Equity prices may exhibit relatively strong fluctuations depending on market conditions
- Currency risks resulting from a high proportion of foreign investments
- Issuer country and credit risks

Monthly Commentary

The performance of the Asian stock markets varied in March. The stock markets in South Korea, Japan and China rose, while India, Indonesia and Hong Kong moved sideways. The "friendshoring" factor is likely to continue to play a role for the Japanese and South Korean markets. China, on the other hand, has set itself a growth target of 5% for 2024. However, this target will be more difficult to achieve than in 2023, as the previous year 2022 still suffered greatly from the consequences of China's zero-covid strategy. The Chinese government has therefore provided a fiscal stimulus. The increased spending is to be channelled into infrastructure measures on the one hand and strategic key areas such as "industries of the future" on the other. The aim is to reduce dependence on Western technologies. In this market environment, the DJE - Asien rose by 2.11%. The sub-sectors of the Asian investment region performed predominantly positively. The sectors that performed best in relative terms were Construction & Materials, Industrials (both overweighted in the fund) and Healthcare (underweighted in the fund). Disappointing results came from the property (overweight in the fund), telecommunications and technology sectors (both underweight in the fund). Overall, the sector weighting therefore had a negative impact on the fund's price performance compared to the benchmark index. The fund management made moderate adjustments to the fund's sector allocation. The overweight was increased in the chemicals, consumer goods and retail sectors. The overweight was reduced in the insurance, travel & leisure, property and industrial sectors. The underweight was reduced in the technology, financial services and automotive manufacturers & suppliers sectors. The underweight was increased in the healthcare and utilities sectors. At country level, the proportion of stocks from Japan, India and Korea increased. Conversely, the proportion of Chinese stocks listed in Hong Kong and the USA fell. As a result of the adjustments, the investment ratio rose from 96.58% to 100.94%. At the end of the month, currency hedges were in place for Hong Kong dollar-denominated stocks against the euro and the US dollar and for Swiss franc-denominated stocks against the euro.
